

GREAT FIGHT IS ON IN CONVENTION CITY

President's Friends Exerting Every Influence to Force Anti-Injunction Plank Into Platform

ALLIES ARE BUSY OPPOSING TAFT'S WISHES

Senator Henry Cabott Lodge of Massachusetts Permanent Chairman and Delivers Lengthy Speech.

(By Henry Eland.)

Chicago, June 17.—The crowd is Roosevelt mad and the delegates would not let Senator Lodge continue his speech. At his allusion to Roosevelt the delegates began cheering and kept it up for 36 minutes. Vorys and Chas. P. Taft, the secretary's brother are worried and are holding a conference.

Chicago, June 16.—The second day's session of the Republican national convention was begun with a vocal solo by Beatrice Fischer Erlinger. As an encore, she sang "Old Kentucky Home," which made a great hit. Chairman Burrows called the convention to order shortly after 12 o'clock.

Just before the gavel fell, Frank Sarstedt of Cleveland, brought in a big supply of red Taft banners and distributed them among the Ohio delegates. As soon as the flags were handed around, they began to wave them about Ohio's standard.

Rev. Dr. W. O. Waters delivered the invocation. Hon. Harry M. Daugherty, delegate from Ohio, claimed the floor and announced that the committee on credentials, of which he is vice chairman, had completed its work and would be ready to report within the hour.

Hon. Henry Banter of Minnesota, and Judge James D. Connor of Indiana, who attended the first Republican convention in 1856, were introduced to the convention by Chairman Burrows. The white bearded men were greeted with rousing cheers.

Chicago, June 16.—President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, in person presented labor's demands to the sub-committee on resolutions today. In his address he hinted that if the labor unions were to be destroyed, if they were to be treated "on the same plane as criminal trusts and monopolies," there might be a revolution.

We don't want to eat an employer as an appetizer before breakfast or as dessert after dinner," he said, but we want fair treatment and we are going to have it. We are not Anarchists or destroyers of property. While labor demands eight hour work day, universal suffrage, employers' liability and other minor enactments, the chief demand is for endorsement of "anti-injunction legislation."

Chicago, June 17.—The great fight of the convention is on. The will power of the administration at Washington, which has had its way in the selecting of the presidential candidate of the Republican party, and will also doubtless make the vice presidential nominee if it desires to do so, will try to succeed in forcing into the platform an anti-injunction plank.

Will it be a Roosevelt or Taft platform, or one dictated by the allies? On this proposition the administration foes of the Roosevelt policies are now engaged in a tremendous battle and every one whose influence is worth anything on either side is being impressed to take part in the struggle.

After being in session until after midnight, 13 platform makers, constituting the sub-committee of the resolution committee met again at 10 o'clock this morning to renew their contentions. Indications are that they will favor the insertion of an anti-injunction plank. The minority will make a minority report to the full committee, which will meet at 4 o'clock this afternoon and the fight will be waged there. Senator Crane claims that there is a majority there against the plank, putting the probable vote at 30 to 32. Taft leaders are equally as positive that they will be in command and that the platform as reported by the whole committee, will contain the injunction plank.

No matter which side is in the minority it is practically certain that the Taft contests will be fought out on the floor of the convention. A minority report will be presented and then will come the tug of war which promises to develop into one of the most stirring scenes witnessed in any recent national convention.

Speaker Cannon, who has been in the fore front of the opposition, is being urged to take a delegate proxy and make a speech against the plank from the floor of the Coliseum. Most of the old line leaders of the senate and house will be lined up with Cannon. Their theme will be that any limitation of powers of the courts would be a surrender to Socialistic Labor sentiment which would alienate the conservative business element throughout the country.

Senator Hopkins and Long Wade Ellis of Ohio, and "Trust Buster" Kellogg of Minnesota, will lead the fight in favor of the plank. President Roosevelt has telegraphed Kellogg to fight until the last ditch. Secretary Taft, through Frank H. Hitchcock, has called upon his friends to stand by him and see that the plank is made a part of the platform.

The remarkable spectacle is presented of Chairman Gary of the Steel corporation, George W. Perkins, confidential representative of J. Pierpont Morgan, Paul Morton and other financiers working in behalf of the anti-injunction plank.

In return they probably desire the influence of labor friends to secure a plank legalizing the pooling of railroad rates.

The platform makers have practically agreed on the planks on tariff, regulating of trusts, railroads, wage-earners, the currency question and negroes. These planks were accepted practically as submitted by Wade Ellis and approved by the President and Secretary Taft.

The Taft followers securely cinched control of the national convention early today when, after 15 hours session the committee on credentials concluded its labors and by an overwhelming majority ratified the action of the national committee in every single contest brought before it. The minority, and a scant minority at that, were talking fight when the committee completed its work. They declared they would support Mayor Charles A. Bookwalter of Indianapolis, in a minority report demanding that the contesting delegates be seated.

A "hunch" is said to have come from Washington that the permanent organization of the convention ought to be completed by night fall, so that the Thursday session could be devoted entirely to completing the platform and naming the candidates.

Chicago, June 17.—The Cummins vice presidential boom was formally launched today and it was announced that all factions in Iowa had agreed to make it unanimous. The Iowa delegation held a meeting and the delegates pledged themselves to cast the solid vote of the state for the governor.

"We have received assurances from the President's representatives," said one of the delegates, "that Roosevelt was willing to have Cummins on the ticket, that he liked him, and that after the head of the ticket was decided upon, he would use his influence to help him."

Chicago, June 17.—The committee on rules today decided against the resolution of James Francis Burke of Pennsylvania, which would reduce southern representation, by a vote of 25 to 17. "I will carry my fight to the floor of the convention," said Burke.

Secretary Malloy made a popular announcement when he told the convention that, pending the resolution and credentials committee report, the clubs of Chicago and the visiting clubs of Chicago and the visiting through the hall. The American club of Pittsburgh, carrying red, white and blue umbrellas and a huge Knox banner, started the march. As they tramped down the aisle and past the platform they shouted "Knox, Knox, Knox."

The Blaine club of Cincinnati, next "Trust Buster" Kellogg in command, then preceded by a band playing the "Star Spangled Banner." The crowd began to suspect that the band had been tampered with by the Taft folks, when it struck up "The Last Rose of Summer" as the Danville Commercial club, bearing "Uncle Joe" banners, filed through.

Senator Beveridge and Hemenway of Indiana, jumped on their chairs and yelled like kids when the Marion club of Indianapolis appeared on the scene. All other Indiana delegates mounted their chairs in imitation of the senators and shouts of "Fairbanks" filled the air, but only in that particular locality.

Senator Fulton presented a report of the committee on credentials. Report was adopted, seating all delegates that were placed on the temporary roll by the national committee. The report on permanent organization was also adopted.

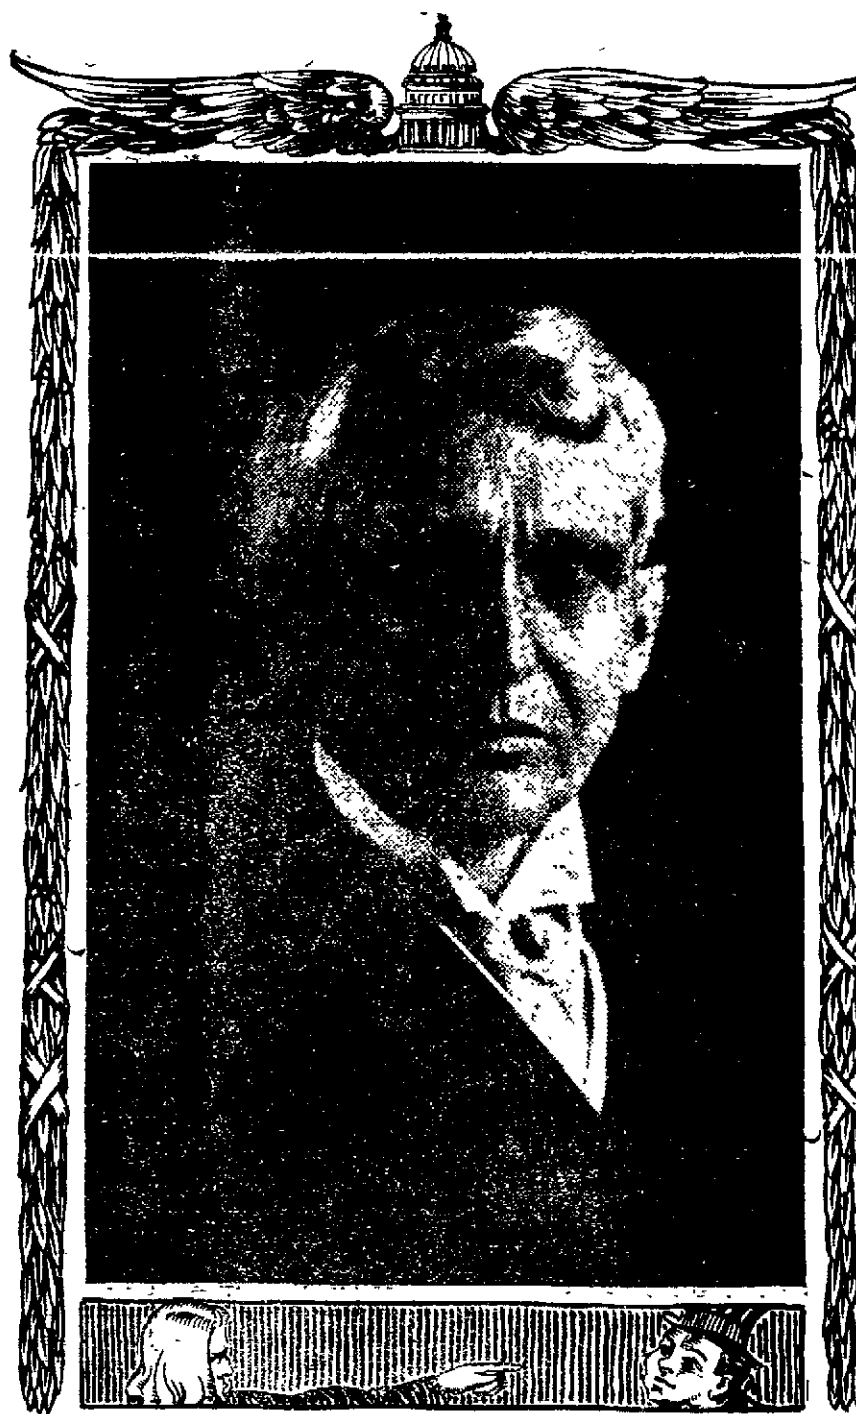

But a few scattering "nods" greeted Chairman Burrows when he called for the vote on the credentials committee report. "The ayes have it," said Chairman Burrows and the gavel fell with a crash.

The allies didn't even ask for a division and so the Taft men were seated.

The committee on permanent organization reported Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts as permanent chairman.

"TRUST BUSTER" FRANK B. KELLOGG

President Roosevelt this morning telegraphed Mr. Kellogg to fight until the last ditch to force into the platform an anti-injunction plank. He will be assisted in the work by Senator Hopkins, and Wade Ellis of Ohio. Secretary Taft has called upon them also to see that the plank is made a part of the platform.

NEWARK ENGINEER

LOSES LIFE IN A BAD FREIGHT WRECK NEAR WASHINGTON TOX C. H.

Fireman Geo. Kuninger, Also of This City, Badly Injured—Train Jumps Track.

A bad wreck occurred Tuesday evening at 6:30 on the Midland division of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, train 107, which leaves Columbus at 5:40, being derailed at Haines Switch, killing Engineer Jas. Floyd and seriously injuring the fireman, Geo. Kuninger, both of this city.

The train, which was made up of engine 839, a baggage car, two coaches and a parlor car, left Columbus on time and was on time when the accident occurred. On a straight piece of track at Haines Switch, just after passing the switch point and at a high rate of speed, the train left the track, the engine turning over on its side, derailed the baggage car and the two coaches. Engineer James Floyd of Newark, Ohio, was instantly killed, being caught under the huge machine and crushed to death.

Fireman George Kuninger, also of Newark, was thrown out of the tender of the engine and struck on the telegraph wires, which no doubt broke his fall, and while he is seriously injured, escaped with his life. The passengers and others employed were greatly shaken up but none are reported as injured.

Fireman George Kuninger was brought to this city on train 106, and while badly bruised, was able to talk about the accident. He was taken from the wreck to Bloomingsburg on a hand car, and from there to Washington, D. C., on a special, where he was examined by a physician and the extent of his injuries determined. It was found that his injuries consist of a broken back, scratched and bruised on body, but he was in condition that would allow him to be taken to his home in Newark. He was met at the station by Dr. B. P. Barnes with McGonagle's ambulance. At this writing he is resting as comfortably as can be expected.

Mr. Kuninger stated that the train was running exactly on time, at a rate of about 60 miles an hour, and when it left the track he was shoveling coal and was thrown about 60 feet into space and landed among a network of wires, and that his escape was nothing short of miraculous. He knew of the sad death of his engineer and was greatly affected when he spoke of him.

His brother, Mr. David P. Kuninger, who is also a railroad man, says this is the fourth wreck that his brother has been in.

From official sources it was learned that no tangible reason can yet be assigned for the disaster, and that the only tenable theory that has been advanced so far, is that freight train 147, which took siding ahead of the wrecked train, damaged the switch point at Haines Switch, so when 107 came along at high speed it left the track. Haines Switch is one-half mile west of Madison Mills and nine miles east of Washington, D. C.

Train 106, due here at 12:20 a. m., was delayed eight hours on account of the wreck.

Engineer Floyd's body was brought in on train 104 at 12:30 p. m. Wednesday.

The dead engineer was 51 years of age and had been in the B. and O. service for years and was one of the company's most trusted men. He was well known and popular here, being one of a large family and had numerous brothers and sisters, most of whom reside at Newark.

Another sad feature of the dead engineer's death is that his oldest daughter, Rosemary, was to have been graduated Sunday in the parochial schools of East Newark, and in view of the circumstances, precludes her receiving her diploma in public.

WILL NOT BECOME PROHIBITION STATE DURING PRESENT TERM OF ASSEMBLY.

Legislature Knocks Out Proposal for State-Wide Prohibition by a Vote of 58 to 47.

Baton Rouge, La., June 17.—Louisiana will not become a prohibition state during the term of the present assembly. This was decided by the house of representatives when that body by a vote of 58 to 47 indefinitely postponed consideration of the Donsan bill providing for a referendum on state-wide prohibition.

The action of the house means complete defeat for the Donsans bill in both branches of the assembly. A bill providing for high license and strict regulation of saloons will now be considered by the house.

NEWARK'S CHANCES 'ARE GROWING BRIGHTER

"Boosters" at Lima are Confident of Victory But are Still Hustling for Veterans' Votes

Staff Correspondent of Advocate Writes Entertainingly of Annual State Encampment of the G. A. R.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Lima, Ohio, June 17 (2 p. m.)—A short business session was held this morning, but nothing definite done in regard to next year's encampment. Newark is almost sure of the convention and many posts have instructed delegates for Newark, even those in the vicinity of Lorain. The "Boosters" are working without rest and the city is plastered with Newark posters and flags. The Newark autos paraded the principal streets this afternoon and made a decided hit.

Even the small boys here are shouting "Newark," and there is no limitation to the friends that the "Boosters" have made for the thriving and hustling capital of Licking county.

Lima, Ohio, June 17.—(1:30)—The weather here is ideal this afternoon and the city is filled with visitors. Bands galore are parading the streets and the boys in blue are having the time of their lives.

Lima's hospitality is unbounded and the old vets are loud in their praise of the excellent treatment which is being accorded them. This morning nearly two hundred of them formed in line and with Newark badges on their coat lapels marched through the principal streets, booming the Molder town. Souvenir cards of Newark are numerous and if the citizens of Licking and especially the business men, could get a glimpse of the busy merchants here during the encampment, they would have been more liberal in assisting Secretary Maylone to try and bring the big convention to Newark next year.

It is estimated that there are over 20,000 strangers in the city today and it is thought that there will be a great many more tomorrow, which is the big day of the week.

The selection of the convention city for next year may not be made until tomorrow morning, although every effort is being made to have it decided this afternoon. Newark "boosters" can be found by the thousands and all the Newarkites are working like beavers. Good results have been accomplished and the Cleveland delegation has lined up for Newark. That city is close to Lorain and the fact that they are supporting Newark has rather put a damper on the Lorain crowd.

We are not making any claims as yet except to say that it looks very much Newark, but we are not losing any time and are working every minute.

Congressman Ashbrook, Senator Miller, Frank Maurath, Hon. "Bob" Howard, I. M. Phillips and Judge Brister are in the receiving line at the Newark headquarters this afternoon and are doing yeoman work. They can talk Newark until the visitors begin thinking there is no other town on the map. The other hustlers of the "boosters" delegation are out scouting for recruits and they must be finding them for there is a continual string of visitors pouring into the Newark headquarters.

I hope to have some good news to report before night.

Lima, June 17.—If any of the old soldiers weren't satisfied with their trip to Lima it is not the fault of the citizens of the city, who have done everything possible to make their short stay in the city most enjoyable.

The Newark delegation and the "Old Vets" from the central and southern part of the state who arrived Tuesday morning, were more than astonished at the reception tendered them and the courtesy after courtesy they received at the hands of the G. A. R. of Lima, the W. R. C. and the Sons of Veterans who met them at the train and made them feel absolutely at home.

Lima as a convention city of the second size is without par in the thoughts of the boys who wore the blue and in whose honor this convention is being held. From the time they stepped from the train that brought them here to the time they were assigned to their rooms every want of theirs, whether expressed or not, was ministered to.

The reception committee, both male and female, met them with clear, concise directions as to how to reach their headquarters, and in many instances pages, with white caps and the word "page" thereon in gold letters, met them and took them to their destination. The headquarters for the convention was at High and Main street, right in the center of the city, and in front of the headquarters a band and drum corps brought them unerringly to the place of registration.

The information bureau consisted of several booths or stalls in which the ladies and gentlemen of the city were placed and it would be hard to ask a question that they were unable to answer. When the Newark delegation, which came by train, and arrived at 12:07, reached the city, the towns and cities surrounding Lima had sent their quota and the main thoroughfare was crowded with a good natured, jostling crowd, ever willing to guide and direct the strangers to their many different headquarters.

The Newark headquarters are located in the Norval Hotel, one of the principal hotels of the city, and all day long their rooms were crowded with a well wishing throng from different cities. All the southern cities in the state with the exception of Portsmouth, are with Newark, and if their city stands no show in the convention when their bid is made, they have promised to second the petition of Lemert Post, No. 71, and the convention for 1909 is almost assured for Newark.

Lorain is a strong competitor, but in the minds of the majority of veterans from the southern and central part of Ohio it is too far away, and as the men are growing more and more feeble, they are growing less and less in favor of long trips. Newark is regarded as a central meeting point, and from all indications the next convention will go to the Licking county capital.

The veterans and newspaper men were the first to arrive in the city from Newark and they at once commenced boosting the chances for their city. Scarcely had the train left Columbus when the "boosters" were among the passengers and every man that wore a bronze button was approached with the request to vote and boost for Newark. The ribbon badges were pinned on them and when the train stopped at Lima, reinforced with those that boarded it at Marion and Kenton, fully two hundred soldiers were wearing Newark badges and vowing to boost for Newark, and the majority of them did not come from Licking county.

The city of Lima was a revelation. Decorated from end to end it presented an appearance that warmed the hearts of the old heroes. Every business house was trimmed with flags, bunting and streamers of red, white and blue hung from every available place. Bands and drum corps blared and pounded out martial music until the face of the terrestrial globe, that is, the spot represented by Lima, seemed fairly to shake with the music.

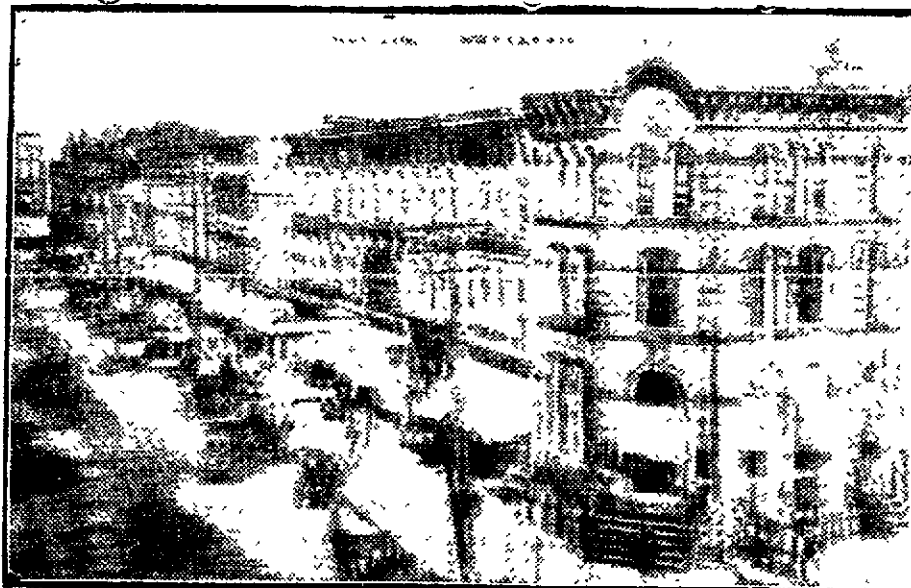

Many a weak old eye glistened and a faltering step strengthened to the music of "Marching Through Georgia" or "Dixie" or some of the old patriotic airs they used to know. Lima celebrated "the boys of '61" rejoiced.

The delegation that left by auto met with many trials and tribulations, but when the clock in the Allen county court house pointed to 6 o'clock the entire crowd had arrived, tired, dirty and happy.

The first machines to arrive were those in charge of David Taylor and George Bader. They never stopped for headquarters or any thing else but went on to San Felice park where the ball game was in progress. They had the misfortune to see the Newark team lose in a ragged game, but their hopes and those of many another fan were raised when in the

The committee as appointed were then elected by the convention. All committeemen who cannot be appointed today will be passed and such committeemen who are named shall organize the committee and the vacancies shall be filled hereafter by the absent precincts.

The central committee upon motion returned to the judge's room to perfect an organization, but were recalled to discuss the question of the organization. They were addressed by Mr. W. H. White, who explained the difference between county and municipal local option. He explained that county local option would knock out the wholesaler, or brewer, as well as the retailers. Municipal local option will not do this. He explained the Cress bills and the "blind tiger" and "speak easy" bills and insisted upon the county local option being enforced.

Rev. L. C. Sparks then made some very pleasant and suggestive remarks and said a great fight was on, and that he liked a fight and a big one when it was for the betterment of the people and the education of the children, but stated they had a hard fight against a great foe. He referred to the injection of the Anti-Liquor league movement in the political parties of today. He said the vote of the county in the control of farmers are large enough to overcome the wet votes in the city, and referred to the Personal Liberty League and its attempt to boycott the business men, stating that the Local Option party will help the business men to resist this movement.

The president of the W. C. T. U., Mrs. Lucy Van Kirk of Granville, was called upon for a few remarks, and suggested and led the song "Licking's Going Dry," to the tune of "Gathering in the Sheaves."

The central committee was ordered to meet in the court room for organization.

TWELVE YEAR OLD UTICA BOY SUSTAINS INJURIES FROM A FRACTIOUS HORSE.

Came Near Falling From Roof—Ball Team Defeated by Mr. Vernon—Other Utica News.

Utica, O., June 17—Harry Richards, a boy of about 12 years, who, with his parents, lives on the George Sperry farm north of town, was severely injured by being kicked in the face by a colt Tuesday morning. He was leading the colt and allowed it too much length of strap so that it whirled and planted one of its hoofs in his face. The blow fractured the bridge of the boy's nose and he was brought to Dr. Smith's office for treatment. It was dressed and with proper care no serious results are expected. His right eye was badly swollen, but it is not thought that the sight was injured.

SWEETEST STORY EVER TOLD.

The Partello story company, without a doubt one of the strongest and best equipped stock companies that has ever visited Newark, repeated its success in a fine presentation of the well known book play, "Lena Rivers." The plot of the piece is laid around a small Massachusetts town in the first act and later changes to a rural part of Kentucky, where the true and lovable character of Lena is shown. Miss Alice Kennedy as Lena is one of the cleverest little actresses on the stage today. She is the youngest leading woman in America, being but 20 years of age. Her portrayal of the poor little Lena is by far the best work she has done here yet. The play made such a tremendous hit this afternoon that it will be repeated to-night and tomorrow.

What will the plays be for next week? Everybody is requested to cast a vote. Blanks furnished at the box office at Idlewild park.

BULLETIN SERVICE

The Advocate, with its usual enterprise, is displaying convention bulletins, which are received every few minutes from the Coliseum at Chicago, through the courtesy of the Central Union Telephone company. The bulletins are displayed on a large blackboard erected over the Advocate's display window and are in charge of "Rosey," who can always be relied upon to give the news accurately, just as it comes over the wires. Large crowds eagerly watched the board all afternoon long, waiting to hear the latest from the Republican national convention, which is now attracting the attention of the whole country. The same service will be maintained during the week of the Democratic national convention at Denver.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION
manent chairman and made all other temporary officers permanent. Then Lodge took the gavel and began his speech.

SENATOR LODGE
Assumes Permanent Chairmanship and Delivers Utterance to Ancient History.

In assuming his duties as permanent chairman of the national Republican convention, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts spoke as follows:
Gentlemen of the Convention: I thank you most sincerely for the great honor you have done me in choosing me to preside over your deliberations. For it is a great honor to be the presiding officer of a Republican convention.
I shall not delay or detain you with many words. Your resolutions will set forth the principles of the party and declare the policies upon which we shall ask for the support of the people of the United States. With fullness and with eloquence your temporary chairman has already reviewed the history of the party, has given you account of what has been done, and has set forth what we hope and mean to do. My duty is merely to aid you, so far as I can, in the orderly and prompt transaction of the business which has brought us together. That business is momentous—nothing less than to name here the two men who, speaking with the simplicity of truth, will be the next president and vice-president of the United States. In order to win for them, and for our party, an assured as well as a merited victory, we must defeat our opponents, whose exclusion from power is desired by the country and deserved by them.

No political party in modern times can show such a record of achievement during the last 50 years as the Republican party. Upon that record we can stand and challenge all comers to the list. The American people must choose next November between us and the Democratic party. With the Democratic party, and with that alone, must the comparison be made. We differ from that party in some important particulars. We both, it is true, have a past and a history, but we treat those possessions very differently. They wish to keep their past a profound secret. We seek by all means to publish ours to the world. If we refer to their history they charge us with calumny. We regard ours, truthful and undistorted, as our greatest glory. To the youth of the country they say, "Judge us solely by our undiscovered future." We say, "Read our record; judge use by our past and our present, and from these learn what we are, what we have been and what we mean to be." Recall the cries which have sounded from the lips of these two parties during the last half century. On the one side: "Slavery; secession; repudiation of the public debt; fiat money; free trade; free silver; the overthrow of the courts and government ownership."

Failed When It Faltered.
On the Republican side: "Free soil; free men; the Union; the payment of the debt; honest money; protection to American industry; the gold standard; the maintenance of law, of order and of the courts and the government regulation of great corporations." The old shibboleths of the Democrats are today the epitaphs of policies which are dead and damned. They serve only to remind us of dangers escaped or to warn us of perils to be shunned. The battle cries of the Republicans have been the watchwords of great causes. They tell of victories won and triumphs tasted; they are embodied in the laws and mark the stepping-stones by which the republic has risen to ever greater heights of power and prosperity.

As we thus call up the past and the echoes of these old conflicts again sound in our ears and touch the chords of memory, one great fact stands forth clear and shining. The Republican party has never failed except when it has faltered. Our long career of victory, so rarely broken, has been due to our facing every danger, as it crossed our path with entire courage fearless of consequences and determined only to be true to the principles which brought the party into existence and to the spirit which has inspired it from its birth. We faced secession rather than assent to the extension of slavery.

Rather than submit to secession we took up the dread burden of civil war. But a few years ago we permitted thousands of Republicans to leave us, thereby imperiling our political power, rather than abandon the gold standard and plunge the country into disaster and dishonor.

In these latest years, as in the most remote, we have been true to our traditions. In the process of development a point was reached where the country was confronted by a situation more perilous than any it has ever faced except in the civil war, and we Republicans were, therefore, obliged to deal with problems of the most complex and difficult character. To our honor be it said, we have not shrunk from the task. Much has been done; much, no doubt, still remains to do; but the great underlying principles have been established, and upon them we can build, as necessarily arises, carefully and deliberately.

I have spoken of the seriousness of the situation with which the country was confronted. Its gravity can hardly be overestimated. It grew out of conditions and was the result of forces beyond control of men. Science and invention, the two great factors in this situation, have not only altered radically human environment and our relations to nature, but, in their application, they have revolutionized economic conditions and have, in turn, affected profoundly society and politics. They have led, among other things, to combinations of capital and labor on a scale and with a power never before witnessed. They have opened the way to accumulations of wealth in masses beyond the dreams of avarice and never before contemplated by men.

The social and political problems thus created are wholly new. It is a fallacy to suppose that because the elements are old the problem itself must, therefore, differ only in degree from those which have gone before. The elements may be old, but the problem presented by a change in the proportion of the elements may be, and in this case is, entirely new.

Great individual fortunes and rich men are, it is true, as old as recorded history. Nearly two thousand years ago the tax farmers of Rome formed a "trust" for their own profit and protection; the English people, three centuries ago, revolted against the patents and monopolies granted by Elizabeth and James to their courtiers and monopolists. Foresters and speculators in the necessities of life were a curse in our revolution and bitterly denounced by Washington. Yet it is none the less true that the same things today present questions different in kind as well as in degree from their predecessors.

New Social Problems.
It is the huge size of private fortunes, the vast extent and power of modern combinations of capital, made possible by present conditions, which have brought upon us, in these later years, problems portentous in their possibilities, and threatening not only our social and political welfare, but even our personal freedom, if they are not boldly met and wisely solved.

The great body of the American people, neither very rich nor very poor, the honest, the thrifty, the hard-working, the men and women who earn and save, have no base envy—no frantic hatred of wealth, whether individual or corporate, if it has been honestly gained and is wisely and generously employed with a sense of responsibility to the public. But this great body of our people, by habit and instinct alike, wisely conservative; these people, who are the bone and sinew of our country and upon whom its fortunes and its safety rest, began to observe, with deep alarm, the recent manifestations of the new economic conditions. More and more they came to believe that these vast fortunes and these huge combinations of capital were formed and built up by tortuous and dishonest means and through a cynical disregard of the very laws which the mass of the people were compelled to obey. They began to fear that political power was being reft from their hands and put into the possession of the money holders, that their dearest rights were in danger, that their hopes of success and advancement were cut off by business systems which they could not understand, but by which the individual was sacrificed and held down.

To those who looked beneath the surface an ominous unrest was apparent. The violent councils of violent men, who aimed at the destruction of property and the overthrow of law, began to be heard and harkened to. The great order-loving, industrious masses of the American people turned away from these advocates of violence, but at the same time demanded that their government should give them, in lawful and reasonable ways, the protection to which they were entitled, against the dangers they justly apprehended.

The great duty of fulfilling these righteous demands, like all the great public services of the last half century, was imposed upon the Republican party, and they have not flinched from the burden. Under the lead of the president the Republican party has grappled with the new problems, born of the new conditions. It has been no light task. Dangerous extremes threatened on either hand. On the one side were the radicals of reaction, who resisted any change at all; on the other side were the radicals of destruction, who wished to change everything. These two forms of radicalism are as far apart as the outset as the poles, but, when carried out, they lead alike to revolution. Between these two extremes the Republican president and the Republican congress were compelled to steer, and while they advanced steadily, soberly and effectively, they were obliged to repel the radical assaults on either hand.

Yet, notwithstanding all these difficulties, much has been accomplished. The response of the people to the policies urged by the president has been so emphatic that it has been made clear, once for all, that the government of the United States is never to be dominated by money and financial interests, and that the political party which permits itself to be ruled by them is thereby doomed to defeat.

The policy of the Republican party, in dealing with these new and formidable questions which have taken concrete form in enormous combinations of capital and in great public service corporations, has been formulated and determined. That policy is to use government regulation and supervision for the control of corporations and combinations so that these great and necessary instruments of commerce and business may be preserved as useful servants and not destroyed because they have threatened to become dangerous masters.

This policy is the absolute opposite of government ownership and all like measures, advocated by our opponents, which tend directly to socialism and to all its attendant miseries and evils.

It is in pursuance of this policy, shaped and settled during the past few years, that old laws have been enforced and new ones enacted.

Nothing is more destructive to the respect for law—the chief bulwark of civilized society—than to place laws upon the statute book in order to still public clamor and satisfy the people, but which it is never intended to enforce. The worst laws imaginable are those which are allowed to rust, unused, because, if enforced, they might interfere with vested abuses or curb the rich and powerful.

President's Policies.

The president has enforced the laws as he found them on the statute book. For this performance of his sworn duty he has been bitterly attacked. It was to be expected. Vested abuses and profitable wrongs cry out loudly when their entrenchments are carried, and some one is sure to be hurt when the baronets of the law are pushed home. In the great American electorate money has few votes, but it can command many voices and cause many birds to sing. The result is that the president is the best-abused and the most popular man in the United States today. He has been more abused than any president except Washington, Lincoln and Grant. He possesses the love and confidence of the American people to a degree never equaled except by Lincoln and Washington. May it not be said, in sober truth, that the fearless performance of a sworn duty is not without its exceeding great reward?

But the work has not ceased with the enforcement of existing laws. A Republican congress and a Republican president have placed new laws upon the statute books, designed to carry out the Republican policy of government regulation in a safe, reasonable and effective manner. The Elkins law, aimed at preferential rebates, which have been the curse of our transportation and our business; the railroad law, which made the supervision of railroads more effective, and the pure food law, which has been in the highest degree beneficent to the masses of our people, are all monuments of the policy and the labors of the Republican party.

The president, who has led his party and the people in this grand work, retires, by his own determination, from his high office, on the 4th of March next. His refusal of a nomination, dictated by the loftiest motives and by a noble loyalty to American traditions, is final and irrevocable. Anyone who attempts to use his name as a candidate for the presidency impugns both his sincerity and his good faith, two of the president's greatest and most conspicuous qualities, upon which no shadow has ever been cast. That man is no friend to Theodore Roosevelt, and does not cherish his name and fame, who now, from any motive, seeks to urge him as a candidate for the great office which he has finally declined.

But, although the president retires, he leaves his policies behind him. To those policies the Republican party stands pledged. We must carry them out as we have begun regardless alike of the radicals of reaction and the radicals of revolution. We must hold fast to that which is good while we make the advances which the times demand.

We believe in the maintenance of law and order and in the support of the courts in all their rights and dignity. We believe in equal rights for all men and are opposed to special privileges for any man, or any class of men, high or low, rich or poor. We, who established the gold standard, are pledged to the cause of sound finance. We stand for protection to American industry and American labor, and we will resist all the assaults of free trade under whatever name it comes disguised. We will see to the defense of the country. We mean to have a navy worthy of the American name. We seek peace and friendship with all the nations, but alliance with none. Yet we have no intention of being a "hermit nation." The great services of the president to the world's peace will be continued by the party which he has led.

In this spirit we must prevail—by this sign we must conquer.

ROSTER RETURNED

Alabama Judge Finds Roll Book of First Ohio Cavalry and Returns It to Gov. Harris.

After a lapse of 46 years, a roll book of Company E, First regiment, Ohio Volunteer Cavalry, which was recruited and mustered into service for the Civil war at Camp Chase, has been located at the court house in Moulton, Lawrence county, Alabama, where members of the company of this famous regiment were confined as prisoners of war and will find his way into the hands of the men who lost it while captives in the old court house. This information will be read with considerable interest by quite a number of old soldiers in Licking county who served in this regiment, of which the late Major D. A. B. Moore, of this city, was the major, and who lost his life at the battle of Stone River. Captain James Kirkendall of this county, was also of Co. D, of this regiment, as was also the late Captain S. G. Hamilton and Lieutenant Harvey Ferguson, of this city. The State Journal contained the following account of the finding of the roll book:

The old roll book was located in rather a peculiar way. Judge J. C. Kumpke of the Probate court of Lawrence county, Alabama, in a letter to Governor Harris told of the book having lain on the shelves of his law library since he ascended to the Probate bench 22 years ago. It was only recently that he made up his mind to inform Ohio authorities of the existence of the book, with its historic value, which, as he says, evidently was left in the court house when the Union cavalrymen were paroled. They probably left in such haste that such ordinary articles as roll books were overlooked in their joy at escaping from the Southern prison.

But the strangest feature of the story of the finding of the book is that Governor Harris was able to turn the letter from Judge Kumpke over to one of his own appointees to state office, who was one of the men confined to the old court house at the time of the loss of the book. Col. W. L. Curry, state commissioner of soldiers' claims, into whose hands Governor Harris placed the letter, was an officer in Company K of the First Ohio Cavalry which, with Company E, to which the book belonged, and two companies of the Tenth Kentucky Infantry, was guarding the railroad bridges at Courtland, Ala., July 25, 1862, when the small command of Union soldiers were overpowered by an overwhelming number of Confederates and some of each of the four companies taken prisoner, and marched to the court house at Moulton for confinement.

Col. Curry was one of the 134 captured. His memory of the incident is strengthened by the fact that it was while a prisoner awaiting marching orders to Moulton that he passed through the most hairbreadth escape of his army career, when a ball from a carbine of a Confederate, who deliberately shot at the prisoners, passed through Col. Curry's cap. It cut the crossed sabers in two and blew the hair off his head down to the scalp. All those who have seen the letter from Moulton have been impressed with the fact that information about the book should fall into the hands of the very man who has more reason than any other to remember the old Alabama court house and Confederate prison.

J. C. O'Hara, the orderly who had charge of the book at the time of its loss, lives at Commercial Point. The full roll of the names of the regiment appears, also the first order to the regiment.

The regimental orders are dated August 23, 1861, headquarters First Ohio Cavalry, at Camp Chase. They notify the regiment that O. P. Ransom, as colonel of the regiment, has assumed command of it. Orders from Col. Ransom follow, appointing First Lieutenant Stephen L. Hommedieu as adjutant, Private Henry Hoxar as sergeant, and First Sergeant George Ladd as commissary sergeant.

Judge Kumpke, in writing about the book, alludes to the imprisonment of the Union soldiers in rather a delicate way. He says, "The soldiers camped in the court house at this place during the war." Then he goes on to relate how he became the custodian of the book. He will send it to the state officials at once.

GYPSEY MOTH IS NOT HERE

Nursery Department Says There is No Danger of Destructive Insect in This Section.

There is no danger of the gypsy moth in this section which seems to have frightened owners of fruit and shade trees in this part of the country. The following notice has been sent out by the Nursery Department: Considerable alarm has been caused among the owners of shade and fruit trees the past week by the appearance of the larvae of the white marked Tussock moth (notolophus leucostigma). Many have read of the injury caused in the east by the moth, and immediately came to the conclusion that the same enemy to shade trees was in our midst. Such is not the case, as the presence of the gypsy moth is still confined to Massachusetts and neighboring States, and if they continue to combat this insect as thoroughly as at present it will probably be a number of years before we find it in Ohio.

The female white marked tussock moth is wingless and for this reason the spread of this insect is usually slow. She lays her eggs on the cocoon from which she has emerged, covering them with a white frothy material. These cocoons are fastened to trunks or nearby objects, and often times to the twigs of trees, in which case they are partly enclosed in the leaf. In the late fall these egg masses can be easily seen and if they are collected and the trees banded with some adhesive material about June the first, the younger caterpillars are prevented from reaching the leaves and the injury is avoided. This is the most practical method for combating this insect. Where it is possible to spray with paris green or arsenate of lead, injury is thus prevented, as the larvae on eating the leaves thus treated are quickly poisoned. This method, however, is seldom possible in cities where the trees are large and proper spraying equipment is usually wanting.

CERTIFICATE

Is Necessary in All Contract Work—Supreme Court Passes on Case From Monroe Township.

Because a township clerk neglected to certify that money to pay for contract work was in the treasury, the Broken Sword Stone company will be unable to collect a claim of $72.15 for some stone work contracted for by the trustees of Monroe township, Licking county, according to a decision of the Supreme court handed down at Columbus Tuesday.

That the money was in the treasury there is no doubt, but the court holds the certificate was necessary under the law. The decision is of special interest because it affects all contract work for county, municipal and township officers.

HOW TO BUILD AND USE THE SPLIT-LOG DRAG

OFFICE OF PUBLIC ROADS OF UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Issues a Bulletin on Simple Road Building Device—Boon to Road Builders.

One of the latest publications issued by the Office of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture treats of the split-log drag, an implement which numerous experiments have conclusively shown to be the greatest possible boon to keep earth roads smooth and passable. Because of its simplicity, its efficiency and its cheapness, both in construction and operation, it is destined to come more and more into general use. With the drag properly built and its use well understood, the maintenance of earth roads becomes a simple and inexpensive matter.

At the present time there are approximately 2,000,000 miles of earth roads in the United States. Some of the most important of these roads will eventually be improved with stone, gravel, and other materials. Many others which are equally important cannot be so improved on account of lack of funds or suitable materials, while still others will not require such treatment because of the light traffic to which they are subjected. For these reasons the majority of our roads must be maintained as earth roads for many years to come. This must be done by inexpensive methods and the split-log drag will be a powerful aid if economy is the criterion demanded.

In the construction of this implement, care should be taken to make it so light that one man can lift it with ease, a light drag responding more readily to various methods of hitching than a heavy one, as well as to the shifting of the position of the operator. The best material for a split-log drag is a dry red cedar log, although red elm and walnut are excellent, and box elder, soft maple, or even willow are superior to oak, hickory, or ash. The log should be between 7 and 10 feet long and from 10 to 12 inches in diameter at the butt end. It should be split carefully as near the center as possible, and the heaviest and best slab chosen for the front. In the front slab 4 inches from the end which is to drag in the middle of the road bore a 2 inch hole which is to receive a cross stake. At a distance of 22 inches from the other end of the front slab, locate the center for another cross stake. The hole for the middle stake will be on a line connecting halfway between the two. Then place the back slab in position and from the end which is to drag in the middle of the road measure 20 inches for the center of one cross stake and 6 inches from the other end locate the center of the opposite stake. The hole for the center stake should be located halfway between the two. All these holes should be carefully bored perpendicularly, or at right angles to the face of the split log.

If these directions are followed it will be found that when the holes of the front and back slabs are brought opposite each other, one end of the back slab will be 16 inches nearer the center of the roadway than the front one. That gives what is known as "set back." The stakes, which are 30 inches long, will hold the slabs this distance apart. When the stakes have been firmly wedged into their sockets, a brace about 2 inches thick and 4 inches wide may be placed diagonally to them at the ditch end of the drag. A cleated board is placed between the slabs and across the stakes for the driver to stand on.

By many it is deemed best to place a strip of iron along the lower face of the front slab for a cutting blade and to prevent the drag from wearing. The drag may be fastened to the doubletree by means of a trace chain. The chain should be wrapped around the left hand or rear stake and passed over the front slab. Raising the chain at this end of the slab permits the earth to drift past the face of the drag. The other end of the chain should be passed through a hole in the opposite end of the front slab and held by a pin passed through a link.

For ordinary purposes, the hitch should be so made that the unloaded drag will follow the team at an angle of about 45 degrees. The team should be driven with one horse on either side of the right hand wheel track or rut the full length of the portion to be dragged, and made to return in the same manner over the other half of the roadway. Such treatment will move the earth towards the center of the roadway and raise it gradually above the surrounding level.

The best results have been obtained by dragging roads once each way after each heavy rain. In some cases however, one dragging every three or four weeks has been found sufficient to keep a road in good condition.

When the soil is moist but not sticky the drag does its best work. As the soil in a field will bake if plowed wet, so the road will bake if the drag is used on it when it is wet. If the roadway is full of holes or badly rutted, the drag should be used once when the ground is soft and slushy. This is particularly applicable before a cold spell in winter, when it is possible to so prepare the surface that it will freeze smooth.

Not infrequently conditions are met with which may be overcome by a slight change in the manner of hitching. Shortening the chain tends to lift the front slab and make the cutting slight, while a longer hitch causes the front slab to sink more deeply into the earth and act on the principle of a plow.

If a furrow of earth is to be moved, the doubletree should be attached close to the ditch end of the drag, and the driver should stand with one foot on the extreme forward end of the front slab.

Conditions are so varied in different localities, however, that it is quite impossible to lay down specific rules. Certain sections of a roadway will require more attention than others, because of steep grades, wet weather springs, soil conditions, exposure to sun and wind, washes, etc. There is one condition, however, in which special attention should be given. Clay roads under persistent draggings frequently become too high in the center. This may be corrected by dragging the earth towards the center of the road twice, and away from it once.

There is no question as to the economy of this road making implement, either in first cost or in operation. In six counties in Kansas in 1906 the cost of maintaining ordinary earth roads, without the aid of the split-log drag, averaged $42.50 a mile. These figures were furnished by Professor W. C. Hoad, of the University of Kansas, who secured them from official records of the counties.

Some figures furnished by F. P. Sanford and R. H. Aishton, general manager of the Chicago and Northwestern railway, have revealed the wonders of this simple device. Mr. Sanford said "The least expense per mile per annum for split-log dragging was $1.50, the greatest a little over $6, and the average expense per mile for 5 1-2 miles a little over $3. I have lived along this road all my life and never in 40 years have I seen it freer from mud and dust, despite the fact that during the season we have experienced the extremes of weather conditions."

The testimony of Mr. Aishton is equally strong. Learning that a township in Iowa had been making an investigation of the split-log drag and had been experimenting with it for a year on 28 miles of highway, he sent an agent to secure information. It was reported that although the town board had paid the cost of making the drags and of hiring men to operate them, the total expense for one year averaged but $2.40 a mile, and the roads were reported to have been "like a race track" the greater portion of the year.

THE FORD

The Car for Business or Pleasure

After you have bought your car is a bad time to look into the facts. You'd better know beforehand whether its speed is real speed or a mere interesting ideal; whether it will respond quickly and safely, in your own hands and give you genuine comfort all the time at a nominal expense, or whether it needs a skilled chauffeur to guide it; a plumber to mend it and a fortune to keep it going and pay for tires. These are practical problems solved by Ford engineering. I want to demonstrate to your own satisfaction that the Ford gives the highest actual all-around ability in proportion to cost yet obtained in motor cars.
